

The Need for Routine Inspections

The purpose of routine inspections is to catch signs of damage before they become catastrophic. Without inspection, gross signs of damage will be seen. However, less obvious but just as serious signs of damage will not be detected unless you look.

Sure you would detect the damage on the right. But would you have detected the damage on the left?

If you think monthly inspections are hassle, try walking into your warehouse and seeing this.

Pallet rack collapse

